piano performance. He has trained with internationally known performers and composers such as Ralph Towner, Terry Riley, Art Lande, Lou Harrison and Pandit Pran Nath. Kehoe is also involved in the "Artists in Education Program" through the Utah Arts Council.

In addition to the professional artists working with students will be an art exhibition in the Central Media Center. The exhibition is from "The Very Special Arts of Utah" and is made up of art work created by handicapped Utah artists. These works have been shown nationwide and are examples of the works these artists create and sell as professional artists. The exhibit will hang throughout the week and is open to the public.

The performances on Tuesday and Friday are also open to the public and parents of Central students are especially encouraged to attend. Admission is free. For more information, call Dr. Kent Larsen, 654-0112, or Rhea Gavry, 654-3730.

J. R. Smith is fortunate, at this time, to have an authentic display of Zaire art work. The Utah Museum of Fine Arts is sharing an interesting display from the Owen D.

Mort Jr. collection. The display is titled, "The Magical Art of Zaire!" Zaire is a large country in the center of Africa. The equator runs through the northern part. In 1400, the Congo was established here. In 1908, the Belgian government took control of this area, and it was called the Belgian Congo. In 1960, this country gained its independence and was called Congo. In 1971, it's name was changed to Zaire.

The art objects shown include a spear, headband, pipe, beaded anklets, bowl, knife, whistle, gong, belt, and other treasured objects. It is interesting to see these articles that actually belonged to the various natives throughout the Zaire history. We are very fortunate to be able to see and discuss the richness of other people's culture.
